SERAX

According to designer Marie Michielssen, the CONSTRUCT collection is all about proportion. "I like to play with shapes", Marie explains. "I cut up cones and cylinders and reassemble them in unexpected ways, creating new, fascinating shapes that are harmonious nonetheless." The result is a line of pots for plants, in two different colours and shapes.

MARIE MICHELSEN

Marie Michielssen studied graphic design and in 1995, she founded her own company. The first thing she did was to buy a lot of flower pots, which she then painted and patinated. The decorative flower pots were a hit and practically overnight, the team grew to 5 ladies. During her search for a wholesaler who could distribute her collection, she came across Serax. It did not take her long to find the creative boost to start designing other things too. She has been doing so for more than 20 years now, and that for two collections per year. Her designs are not only characterised by using graphic prints, but also by a preference for materials with a soul, like porcelain, paper, canvas ...
